The Alan Morrison Supreme Court Assistance Project (SCAP) of Public Citizen Litigation Group regularly distributes this watch list to raise awareness of public interest issues presented to the U.S. Supreme Court. SCAP monitors cert. petitions where the question presented implicates our public interest mission and there is a chance of a grant. SCAP also offers pro bono assistance to litigants involved in some cases.

KEY TERMS & ABBREVIATIONS

Petition for Certiorari “Cert” Petition	The brief filed at the Supreme Court by a party who lost in a lower federal or state court, asking the Supreme Court to grant certiorari and review the decision of the lower court. If cert is granted, the Court will hear the case. If cert is denied, the decision below stands.
Petitioner	The party petitioning the Supreme Court for a grant of certiorari—who lost in the lower court and is asking the Supreme Court to overturn the lower court decision.
Respondent	Any party other than the petitioner, but generally the party opposing a grant of certiorari. These parties usually want the Court to deny cert.
BIO Brief in Opposition	The brief in opposition to certiorari is the brief filed by a respondent in response to the petitioner’s petition for certiorari (“cert petition”). This is the brief in which the respondent may explain why the Court should not hear the case.
CFR Call For a Response	Where the respondent has initially waived filing a response, after reading the petition for certiorari but before deciding whether to hear the case, the Court sometimes issues a CFR, or asks the respondent to file a brief in opposition.
Conf. Conference	This is the term for the meeting the Justices regularly hold regarding pending cert petitions and cases. Conference dates are listed on the current Supreme Court calendar .
CVSG Call for the Views of the Solicitor General	Before deciding whether to hear a case, the Court sometimes chooses to CVSG the petition. This means the Court is inviting the Solicitor General to file a brief providing the views of the United States regarding the question presented by the petition. The brief eventually filed is called an “invitation brief.” Briefs filed this term are available here .
Dist. Distributed	This provides the date of the Conference for which this petition and related filings were distributed to the Justices, and the date when the Court may take action on the petition.
GVR Granted, Vacated, and Remanded	The Supreme Court granted, vacated, and remanded the petition, usually in light of an intervening case. Essentially, this means the Supreme Court has cancelled out the lower court’s decision and sent the case back to that court for reconsideration.
Held	The Court frequently holds petitions for later consideration if they raise the same or similar questions as those presented by other petitions or granted cases. The Court will consider these petitions again later, usually after announcing a decision in another case.
QP Question/s Presented	The question or questions presented in a petition for the Supreme Court to decide. The Court usually does not address issues not included in the QP.
Vide	Occasionally, more than one party will ask the Supreme Court to hear the same case. Marking a petition “Vide” recognizes that it comes from the same lower court opinion as another pending petition.

Habeas Corpus: Batson Challenges

BIO 10/26. Reply 11/5. Dist. for 11/24. Re-listed for 12/4.
Record requested 12/7. Re-listed for 1/15. Re-listed for 1/22.

Is a capital defendant entitled to a new trial under Batson v. Kentucky, 476 U.S. 79 (1986), even where there has been no judicial finding of a racially motivated peremptory strike?

1. Specifically, does this Court's recent decision in Snyder v. Louisiana, 128 S. Ct. 1203 (2008), require a new trial—even where a prosecutor struck a prospective juror based on her friendly demeanor towards defense counsel, and not race—solely because the trial judge observed the prosecutor's unrebutted explanation for the strike, but did not also observe voir dire firsthand?
2. Was this purported right to an automatic new trial “clearly established” under this Court's precedents at the time of trial in 1999, as required under the Antiterrorism and Effective Death Penalty Act of 1996? And does this purported right prevent federal courts from applying the presumption of correctness to the state court finding that the peremptory strike was not racially motivated, as required under AEDPA?

09-329 Chase Bank v. McCoy (9th Cir.)

Truth in Lending Act: Regulation Z

BIO 11/30. Reply 12/15. Dist. for 1/8. Re-listed for 1/15. Re-listed for 1/22.

Deepak Gupta and Allison Zieve of Public Citizen are co-counsel for respondent.
Brief in Opposition.

The Federal Reserve Board's Regulation Z, which implements the Truth in Lending Act, requires creditors to provide an initial disclosure statement, before any transaction on an open-end credit plan takes place, containing "each periodic rate that may be used to compute the finance charge." 12 C.F.R. § 226.6(a)(2). Regulation Z also requires that when a creditor later changes any term that it was required to disclose in the initial disclosure statement, the creditor must "mail or deliver written notice" of that change in terms before the effective date of the change. 12 C.F.R. § 226.6(c). Credit card issuing banks generally provide the requisite initial disclosures in or with the contract document that governs the credit card amount. Such cardholder agreements commonly specify a standard periodic rate of interest and also that, if the cardholder defaults in a certain manner, then the creditor may increase the periodic rate on the account up to an identified default rate. The question presented is:

When a creditor increases the periodic rate on a credit card account in response to a cardholder default pursuant to a default rate term that was disclosed in the contract governing the account, does Regulation Z, 12 C.F.R. § 226.6(c), require the creditor to provide the cardholder with a change-in-terms notice even though the contractual terms governing the account have not changed?

Attorney's Fees: § 1988

BIO 11/23. Reply 12/4. Dist. for 1/8. Re-listed for 1/15. Re-listed for 1/22.

1. Are claims for declaratory relief against a local public entity subject to the requirement of Monell v. Department of Social Services, 436 U.S. 658 (1978) that the plaintiff demonstrate that the constitutional violation was the result of a policy, custom, or practice attributable to the local public entity as determined by the First, Second, Fourth and Eleventh Circuits, or are such claims exempt from Monell's requirement as determined by the Ninth Circuit?
2. May a plaintiff be a prevailing party under 42 U.S.C. § 1988 for purposes of a fee award against a local public entity based upon a claim for declaratory relief where the plaintiff has not demonstrated that any constitutional violation was the result of a policy, custom or practice attributable to the public entity under Monell?
3. May a plaintiff be a prevailing party on a claim for declaratory relief for purposes of a fee award under 42 U.S.C. § 1988 where there is neither a formal order nor judgment granting declaratory relief, nor any other order altering the legal relationship between the parties in a way that directly benefits the plaintiff?

09-438 Providence Hosp. and Medical Centers v. Moses (6th Cir.)

EMTALA: Stabilization Requirement

BIO 12/16. Dist. for 1/15. Re-listed for 1/22.

1. Whether the Emergency Medical Treatment and Labor Act's, 42 U.S.C. § 1395dd ("EMTALA"), requirement that any individual who comes to a hospital's emergency department with an emergency medical condition be screened and stabilized should be expanded to continue indefinitely, after the individual has been admitted as an inpatient to the hospital for care or treatment?
2. Whether the CMS's regulation clarifying that EMTALA is inapplicable to hospital inpatients, 42 C.F.R. § 489.24(d)(2)(I), is valid, and applies retroactively?

09-466 U.S. v. Williams (2d Cir.)

Criminal Law: Sentencing

BIO 11/19. Reply 12/1. Dist. for 1/8. Re-listed for 1/22.

Section 924(c) of Title 18 requires specified mandatory consecutive sentences for committing certain weapons offenses in connection with "any crime of violence or drug trafficking crime," "[e]xcept to the extent that a greater minimum sentence is otherwise provided under this subsection, or by any other provision of law."

The question presented is whether the "except" clause prohibits imposition of a Section 924(c) sentence if the defendant is also subject to a greater mandatory minimum sentence on a different count of conviction charging a different offense for different conduct.

09-476 Patent Enforcement Team v. Dickson Industries (Fed. Cir.) Patent Law: Abuse of Patents
BIO 12/23. Reply 1/5. Dist for 1/22.

1. Can a patentee be held liable for tortious interference without an appropriate finding that the patentee's pre-suit actions were objectively baseless?
2. What constitutes substantial evidence sufficient to invalidate a claim based on anticipation?

09-479 Abbott v. U.S. (3rd Cir.)

Criminal Law: Sentencing

BIO 12/22. Reply 12/31. Dist. for 1/22.

18 U.S.C. § 924(c)(1)(a) provides, in part, that a person convicted of a drug-trafficking crime or crime of violence shall receive an additional sentence of not less than five years whenever he "uses or carries a firearm, or * * * in furtherance of any such crime, possesses a firearm" unless "a greater minimum sentence is * * * provided * * * by any other provision of law." The questions presented are:

1. Does the term "any other provision of law" include the underlying drug trafficking offense or crime of violence?
2. If not, does it include another offense for possessing the same firearm in the same transaction?

09-480 Hensley v. U.S. (7th Cir.)

Criminal Law: Sentencing

BIO 12/22. Reply. 1/5. Dist. for 1/22.

Whether a sentencing judge may, consistent with the Ex Post Facto Clause, employ the version of the U.S. Sentencing Guidelines Manual in effect at the time of sentencing even though it produces a longer sentence calculation than the Guidelines Manual in effect at the time the offense was committed.

09-510 Dillon v. Mountain Coal Co. (10th Cir.)

ADA: Pretext

BIO 10/22. Dist. for 1/22.

1. May evidence of pretext be used to prove an employee is regarded as disabled under the Americans with Disabilities Act ("ADA"), and if so, do falsehoods regarding policies applicable to impaired individuals and about the ability to accommodate impaired individuals constitute such pretext evidence?
2. Under the ADA, when the major life activity under consideration is "working," must the employee always present evidence of the geographic area to raise a question of fact with respect to being disabled, including in a regarded as disabled case?
3. Is evidence that the employer believes the employee is unable to perform any job in a facility with multiple jobs sufficient to raise a question of fact that the employer regards the employee as disabled under the Americans with Disabilities Act?
4. Under the Americans with Disabilities Act, is a "no restrictions" policy evidence that an employer regards a restricted employee as disabled?

09-570 Delaware v. Cooke (Sup. Ct. Del.)

Sixth Amendment: Defense Strategy

BIO 12/10. Reply 12/22. Dist. for 1/15. Re-listed for 1/22.

1. Whether a criminal defendant has a fundamental constitutional right to direct his counsel to present a “factual innocence-based defense” irrespective of counsel’s professional judgment.
2. Whether an unresolved disagreement between counsel and defendant regarding pursuit of a “concession-of-guilt and mitigation” defense constitutes a conflict of interest that violates the defendant’s Sixth Amendment right to counsel.

09-587 Harrington v. Richter (9th Cir.)

Habeas Corpus: Expert Testimony

BIO 12/17. Reply 12/28. Dist. for 1/15. Re-listed for 1/22.

In granting habeas corpus relief to a state prisoner, did the Ninth Circuit deny the state court judgment the deference mandated by 28 U.S.C. section 2254(d) and impermissible enlarge the Sixth Amendment right to effective counsel by elevating the value of expert-opinion testimony in a manner that would virtually always require defense counsel to produce such testimony rather than allowing him to rely instead on cross-examination or other methods designed to create reasonable doubt about the defendant’s guilt?

PENDING FOR UPCOMING CONFERENCES

08-1520/08-1524 Dallas v. Gould/Texas Water Development Bd. v. Dept. of the Interior (5th Cir.)      Administrative Law: National Environmental Policy Act
CFR 9/15. BIO 1/4. Reply of Tx. Water Development Bd. 1/13. Dist. for 2/19.

08-1520:

This case involves the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service's ("FWS") compliance with the National Environmental Policy Act ("NEPA") when it established the boundaries for a new, permanent 25,281-acre national wildlife refuge along the upper Neches River in East Texas.

1. When establishing a permanent wildlife refuge covering thousands of acres, did FWS comply with NEPA when it (i) established a short-term time horizon that it knew would preclude consideration of reasonably foreseeable effects beyond that time horizon; (ii) excluded the known indirect impacts of its actions on a reservoir project planned, pursuant to Texas law, for the same area; and (iii) refused to consider any alternative that would allow both the wildlife refuge and the reservoir to proceed?
2. Whether the Fifth Circuit failed to follow this Court's "proximate causation" requirement, as enunciated in Department of Transportation v. Public Citizen, 541 U.S. 752 (2004), when it excused FWS's failure to assess, under NEPA, the indirect impacts associated with the loss of a municipal water source?
3. May a court properly hold that FWS's reliance on 20-year-old, inaccurate data did not affect its NEPA decision even though the data concerned the central environmental issue in FWS's decision, and despite the absence in the administrative record of any suggestion that FWS had accounted for the inaccuracy in its decisionmaking?

08-1524:

After performing an Environmental Assessment (EA) and issuing a Finding Of No Significant Impact (FONSI), in lieu of preparing an Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (NEPA), 42 U.S.C. §§ 4321-4370h, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (FWS) established the 25,281-acre Neches River National Wildlife Refuge (NRNWR or Refuge) as a wintering habitat for migrating waterfowl. The creation of the Refuge, however, conflicted with plans that the State of Texas and the City of Dallas had for building a reservoir on the same land (Fastrill Reservoir or Lake Fastrill) in order to provide a future water supply for Dallas residents and others. This case presents the following question:

1. Whether NEPA § 102(C), 42 U.S.C. § 4332(C), requires a federal agency to prepare an EIS when the agency's proposed action conflicts with a State's long-range planning efforts to provide a future water supply for its citizens.

09-293 Ozuna v. U.S. (7th Cir.)
CFR 9/29. BIO 1/13.

Criminal Law: Suppression Hearings

The district court granted Petitioner's motion to suppress evidence found during a search of his vehicle, holding that Petitioner did not consent to the search. The government moved to reopen the suppression hearing in order to introduce expert handwriting analysis claiming that Petitioner signed a form consenting to the search. Although the government could have introduced handwriting analysis at the initial suppression hearing, the district court reopened the hearing to admit the handwriting analysis, vacated its prior decision, and found the evidence discovered in Petitioner's vehicle admissible. The Seventh Circuit affirmed.

Expressly rejecting decisions from several other circuits, it held that the government was not required to justify its failure to introduce handwriting analysis at the initial suppression hearing.

The question presented is whether a litigant moving to reopen a suppression hearing in order to introduce additional evidence must justify its failure to introduce that evidence at the initial hearing.

09-419 Kentucky v. Cardine (Sup. Ct. Ky.)
CFR 12/8. BIO 1/7.

Criminal Law: Double Jeopardy

Whether the Double Jeopardy Clause bars the retrial of a defendant after the trial court sua sponte declares a mistrial absent manifest necessity and the defendant does not object prior to the actual discharge of the jury.

09-426 Eklund v. Wheatland County (Sup. Ct. Mt.)
CFR 12/7. BIO 1/5. Dist. for 2/19.

Due Process: Financial Conflicts

Whether the Plaintiff was denied due process of law when he was forced to accept a jury in his personal injury law suit all of whom were taxpayers of the Defendant county and who feared they personally would be required to participate in the payment of a very large verdict against the county. Due process is denied if either the Judge or the Jury have a significant financial interest in the outcome. Aetna Life Insurance Co. v. LaVoie, 475 U.S. 813, 824 (1986). Here the average juror's share was $1,241.63 and the jury foreman's share was $7,334.42 out of his own pocket.

09-435 New West, L.P. v. City of Joliet, IL/
09-445 Davis v. City of Joliet, IL (7th Cir.) (vied)
BIO of HUD 1/13.

Eminent Domain: Low-Income Housing

09-435:

1. When Congress has expressly directed that the Nation's dwindling supply of affordable housing be preserved and expressly delegated to the Department of Housing and Urban Development ("HUD") the power to decide which housing shall be preserved, may a local municipality thereafter simply usurp HUD's authority by exercising its eminent domain powers to destroy that housing?
2. After Wyeth v. Levine, 129 S. Ct. 1187 (2009) and Cuomo v. Clearing House Association, L.L.C., 129 S. Ct. 2710 (2009), does conflict preemption exist or is preemption now entirely dependent upon express preemption language in a statute or regulation?
3. Does HUD's first mortgage on an affordable housing development, its right to possession of and control of the property and its status as the beneficiary of regulatory and use agreements between the owner and HUD requiring that the property remain affordable housing, create a protectable federal property interest?
4. May a local municipality seize federal property interests over the objective of the federal government?

Whether under the Supremacy Clause of the United States Constitution (U.S. Const. Art. VI Cl. 2), the City of Joliet may condemn certain federal subsidized, low-income, multifamily housing, when federal law explicitly requires the property to be maintained for at least 30 years as housing for low-income families.

09-491 City of Long Beach v. Long Beach Area Peace Network (9th Cir.)

First Amendment: Time, Place, Manner

BIO 12/28. Dist. for 2/19.

1. Whether the First Amendment precludes a city from enacting a reasonable time, place and manner regulation in order to recoup the cost of city services required to remove litter and debris caused by special events conducted on public property.
2. Whether a time, place and manner regulation enacted to recoup the cost of city services provided for the purpose of “crowd control” and “construction” for a special event conducted on city property is not narrowly tailored to serve a substantial governmental interest.
3. Whether the First Amendment precludes a city from waiving otherwise permissible time, place and manner regulations absent a pattern of unlawful favoritism.
4. Whether the availability of streets and sidewalks provides ample alternative means of communication for persons unable to meet the permitting or notice requirements for a special event on public property.
5. Whether the First Amendment precludes a city from seeking indemnification for liability it may incur caused by the acts or omissions of a permittee conducting a special event on public property.

2. Did the Tenth Circuit err by invoking an uninformed and mistaken “reasonable observer” in applying the endorsement test, in conflict with the well-informed reasonable observer” employed by the Second, Sixth, Seventh, and Eighth Circuits in Establishment Clause cases.

3. Should the court grant the petition, vacate the decision below, and remand for consideration in light of Burlington Northern & Santa Fe Railway Co. v. United States, 129 S. Ct. 1870 (2009)?

1. Did the Sixth Circuit err in holding that the “plain language” of the Clean Water Act precludes an EPA rule, consistent with 35 years of agency practice, that the application of a useful pesticide for its intended purpose and in accordance with relevant requirements of EPA’s pesticide regulatory program is not a “discharge of a pollutant”?
2. In reviewing an agency regulation under Chevron, may a court reject the agency’s interpretation by declaring a “plain meaning” that departs from the common understanding of the controlling statutory provisions, without considering the statutory context, the simultaneous enactment of a different statute more specifically addressing the subject matter, or the agency’s contemporaneous interpretation, all of which support the agency’s interpretation?

Due Process: Retroactivity

This Court has consistently held that an appellate court, either federal or state, must apply the law in effect at the time it renders its decision. Specifically, this Court has stated that "[i]f subsequent to the judgment and before the decision of the appellate court, a law intervenes and positively changes the rule that governs, the law must be obeyed . . ." Thorpe v. Housing Auth. of Durham, 393 U.S. 268, 282 (1935) (quoting Chief Justice Marshall). In an one page opinion, the Alabama Supreme Court, without any analysis, upheld the decision of the Alabama Court of Civil Appeals affirming the trial court's judgment against the Birmingham Board of Education ("Board") in a 42 U.S.C. § 1983 equal protection "class-of-one" claim brought by Cathy McCord-Baugh (plaintiff/respondent), an employee of the Board, despite the fact that this Court rendered its decision in Engquist v. Oregon Dept. of Agriculture, et al., 128 S. Ct. 2146 (2008), which held that such actions cannot be brought against public entities, such as the Board.

The question presented is whether the Alabama Supreme Court should be reversed because it impermissibly ignored the controlling intervening United States Supreme Court decision in Engquist, as it decided the pending federal question of whether an employee of a public school district could sustain an equal protection "class-of-one" claim against a public school district.

Habeas Corpus: Ineffective Assistance

1. This Court established in Hill v. Lockhart the standard for assessing, in a collateral challenge to a conviction that was based on a guilty or no-contest plea, whether an attorney’s deficient performance requires reversal of a conviction. In Arizona v. Fulminante—a direct appellate review case—this Court reviewed all the evidence presented at trial and held that the erroneous admission of a coerced confession at the trial was not harmless.

a. If a collateral challenge is based on a defense attorney’s decision not to move to suppress a confession prior to a guilty or no contest plea, does the Fulminante standard apply, even though no record of a trial is available for review?

b. Even if the Fulminante standard applies in that context, is it “clearly established Federal law” for purposes of 28 U.S.C. § 2254(d)(1)?

2. In Moore’s underlying criminal case, he confessed to police that he personally shot the victim. He also confessed to two other people, and he ultimately pleaded no contest to murder. In his collateral challenge to his conviction, he alleged that his attorney should have moved to suppress the confession to police, but he offered no evidence that he would have insisted on going to trial had counsel done so. 3. Whether, for purposes of 18 U.S.C. Section 3583(d) and U.S.S.G. Section 5D1.3's requirement that special conditions of supervised release not involve a greater deprivation of liberty than reasonably necessary to achieve the statutory purposes of sentencing, a special condition of supervised release prohibiting internet access without the permission of the probation officer is an undue deprivation of liberty when there is no connection between computers or the internet and the offense of conviction or any prior alleged wrongdoing?

First Amendment: Abortion Clinics

Massachusetts has imposed a criminal prohibition on "enter[ing] or remain[ing] on a public way or sidewalk . . . within a radius of 35 feet of any portion of an entrance, exit, or driveway of a reproductive health care facility." The law applies only at abortion clinics, not at hospitals or other medical facilities. The statute exempts passerby and municipal agents (such as law enforcement officials). It also exempts people entering or leaving the clinic, and clinic employees acting "within the scope of their employment." For others, the statute makes it a crime to stand on the public sidewalk and display signs, distribute leaflets, pray in silence, or converse with willing listeners, even when there are no incoming patients in or near the zone. The questions presented are:

1. Whether the First Circuit erred in holding—contrary to Hill v. Colorado, 350 U.S. 703 (2000), applications of Hill by other courts, and well-established First Amendment principles—that Massachusetts' establishment of unique speech-free zones around abortion clinics is consistent with the First and Fourteenth Amendments.

Criminal Law: *Voir Dire

Pursuant to the Due Process Clause and the Sixth Amendment’s guarantee of an impartial jury, a trial court must allow probing of a potential juror at voir dire for possible bias when there is a “significant likelihood” that racial or similarly invidious prejudice might infect the juror’s deliberations. Ristaino v. Ross, 424 U.S. 589, 598 (1976); accord Turner v. Murray, 476 U.S. 28 (1986); Ham v. South Carolina, 409 U.S. 524 (1973). In this case, petitioner, an Arab Muslim who eventually faced an ethnically and religiously infused prosecution on charges punishable by life in prison, sought to probe the views of a juror who stated during voir dire that he was “more likely to believe” a Muslim would commit a crime and that, “notwithstanding the facts presented, . . . my bias may be altered based on the belief [that petitioner] would be obeying religion versus law.” App. 14a.

The question presented is whether the courts below erred in refusing to allow petitioner to probe the juror for potential bias (or to dismiss the juror for cause) on the ground that the juror’s comments “did not unequivocally express actual bias.” App. 16a.

The National Childhood Vaccine Injury Act of 1986 shielded vaccine manufacturers from categories of tort litigation, directed federal agencies to develop safer childhood vaccines, and established a Vaccine Court to administer a no-fault remedy for vaccine-related injuries. The Act's express preemption provision states that "[n]o vaccine manufacturer shall be held liable in a civil action" if the injury "resulted from side effects that were unavoidable even though the vaccine was properly prepared and was accompanied by proper directions and warnings." 42 U.S.C. § 300aa-22(b)(1). BIO 8/24. Reply 9/8. Dist. for 9/29. CVSG 10/5.

San Francisco’s Health Care Security Ordinance—a “pay-or-play” law—mandates either ongoing employer contributions at set minimum rates for employee health-benefits or equal payments to the City’s Health Access Program, along with extensive record-keeping and reporting and disclosure requirements. In a decision directly conflicting with Supreme Court ERISA preemption decisions, the Ninth Circuit rejected petitioner’s ERISA-preemption challenge despite repeated amicus support by the Secretary of Labor. Identifying “an issue of exceptional national importance,” an eight Judge dissenting opinion from denial of rehearing en banc, including Chief Judge Alex Kozinski, observed that the decision “creates a circuit split with the Fourth Circuit . . . , renders meaningless the [ERISA preemption] tests the Supreme Court set out in Shaw v. Delta Airlines . . . , and disregards the “need for nationally uniform plan administration.” [sic] It also warned that the decision “will undoubtedly serve as a roadmap in jurisdictions across the country on how to design and enact a labyrinth of laws requiring employer compliance on health care expenditures, thereby creating the very kind of health care balkanization ERISA was intended to avoid.” The Question Presented is:

Whether ERISA section 514(a), 29 U.S.C. § 1144(a) preempts local laws mandating ongoing employer contributions for employee health-benefits, or alternative payments to a local government, and extensive recordkeeping and reporting and disclosure requirements, a question on which the courts of appeals are in conflict.

To establish jurisdiction over a foreign sovereign, the tort exception of the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act of 1976 (FSIA), 28 U.S.C. 1605(a)(5), requires that a plaintiff's injury be caused by the "tortious act" of an "employee of [the] foreign state while acting within the scope of his . . . employment[.]" This case presents the following question:

For nearly 30 years, the executive branch invited specific reliance on its interpretation of law by issuing numerous authoritative, formal, and expressly binding rulings that a private entity was legally entitled to tax-exempt status as long as it complied with a long list of conditions. The executive branch then reversed its legal position. Rather than make that change prospective only, however, it reached back to impose 15 years of retroactive financial liability as well. The question presented is:

Is the executive branch, unlike the legislative branch, free of all due process constraints on retroactive government action, no matter how far back in time that retroactivity runs, how harsh and oppressive the retroactivity might be, how justified a private entity’s reliance might be, or whether the government has any rational basis for making its change retroactive, as long as the executive branch asserts that its earlier interpretation of law was “wrong”?

Pursuant to leases from the City of San Diego, San Diego Boy Scouts built and operates a campground and an aquatic center for use by Scouts and the general public. There are no religious symbols at either facility. Plaintiffs have never visited either facility, but feel offended that the City leases public property to Boy Scouts. The district court found an Establishment Clause violation because the City’s leases were not the result of a competitive bidding process. The Ninth Circuit held that Plaintiffs have standing to bring an Establishment Clause challenge based on feeling offended. The questions presented:

1. Whether Plaintiffs have Article III standing to bring an Establishment Clause challenge to City leases of recreational facilities to the Boy Scouts when Plaintiffs have never visited the facilities and the facilities are available for use by the public and display no religious symbols.
2. Whether Plaintiffs have Article III standing bring an Establishment Clause challenge to City leases to the Boy Scouts where the violation found by the district court was the lack of competitive bidding and Plaintiffs are not potential bidders, but rather object to Boy Scouts being the lessee under any circumstance.

A New York statute makes the possession of a type of weapon known as nunchaku a criminal misdemeanor. Petitioner was arrested in his home and charged with possessing nunchaku. No other conduct, such as misusing the weapon or bearing it in public, was involved. The possession charge was ultimately dropped, though Petitioner was required to destroy the nunchaku.

Desiring to continue freely exercising his individual constitutional right to keep such arms in his home for self-defense, Petitioner brought this declaratory judgment action seeking to have the New York statute pronounced invalid insofar as it applies to criminalize the mere possession of nunchaku in one's home. The second Circuit held that under this Court's precedent, it was constrained to rule that the Second Amendment does not apply against the States, and dismissed his complaint. The questions presented are:

1. Whether the Second Amendment's individual right to keep and bear arms is incorporated against the States through the Due Process Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment.
2. Whether the Second Amendment's individual right to keep and bear arms is a privilege or immunity of citizens of the United States applicable to the States under the Privileges or Immunities Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment.

1. Under *McCormick v. In such situations the official asserts that his official conduct will be controlled by the terms of the promise or undertaking." Does this standard require proof of an "explicit" quid pro quo promise or undertaking in the sense of actually being communicated expressly, as various Circuits have stated; or can there be a conviction based instead only on the inference that there was an unstated and implied agreement, a state of mind, connecting the contribution and an official action?

In a state trial for causing the death of an infant, prosecution and defense experts disagreed on whether there was sufficient evidence that the baby died from shaking. The jury convicted. In federal habeas proceedings, the Ninth Circuit held that there was insufficient evidence to support the state criminal conviction, and that state appellate court had unreasonably applied Jackson v. Virginia, 443 U.S. 307, 319 (1979), in upholding it. This Court vacated the Ninth Circuit decision and remanded the case for further consideration in light of Carey v. Musladin, 127 S. Ct. 649 (2006). On remand, the Ninth Circuit reinstated its earlier opinion, concluding that its analysis was “unaffected by Musladin.” The question presented is:

Did the Ninth Circuit exceed its authority under the deferential standard for habeas review in 28 U.S.C. § 2254(d) by reinstating its opinion granting relief on an insufficient-evidence claim based on accepting the testimony of defense experts on cause of death over the contrary opinions of prosecution experts?

Fed. R. Civ. P. 15(c)(1)(C) permits an amended complaint to "relate back," for limitation purposes, when the amendment corrects a "mistake concerning the proper party's identity." Other circuit courts of appeal construe the rule as applying to substitution of the correct defendant for a related corporation with a similar name. The Eleventh Circuit has concluded that there can be no such "mistake" where the plaintiff had imputed knowledge of the identity of the added defendant prior to filing suit. Does the Eleventh Circuit Construction of Rule 15(c)(1)(C) undermine the purpose of the rule and is it inconsistent with the decisions in other circuits?

Section 502(g)(1) of ERISA provides: "In any action under this subchapter . . . by a participant, beneficiary, or fiduciary, the court in its discretion may allow a reasonable attorney's fee and costs of the action to either party." 29 U.S.C. 1132(g)(1).

The Fourth Circuit in the decision below held that "only a prevailing party is entitled to consideration for attorneys' fees in an ERISA action," while the Second, Fifth and Eleventh Circuits have declined to read a "prevailing party" requirement into 502(g)(1) and other circuits have issued conflicting authority. The Fourth Circuit also held that the "prevailing party" standard was not met and vacated an award of attorneys' fees to petitioner, even where the district court found "compelling evidence that [petitioner] is totally disabled," ruled that petitioner "did not get the kind of review to which she was entitled under applicable law" and remanded for a redetermination of benefits with an instruction that respondents "act on [petitioner's] application by adequately considering all the evidence discussed within this Opinion within thirty (30) days of its date of issuance" or "judgment will be issued in favor of [petitioner]" and petitioner obtained the requested long-term disability benefits upon remand. The questions presented are:

1. Whether the Fourth Circuit erred in holding that ERISA 502(g)(1) provides a district court discretion to award reasonable attorney's fees only to a prevailing party?
2. Whether a party is entitled to attorney's fees pursuant to 502(g)(1) when she persuades a district court that a violation of ERISA has occurred, successfully secures a judicially-ordered remand requiring a redetermination of entitlement to benefits, and subsequently receives the benefits sought on remand?

1. Whether the court below erroneously interpreted the Federal Railroad Safety Act of 1970 (“FRSA”) codified at 49 U.S.C. §20101 et seq. to preclude a Federal claim pursuant to the Federal Employers’ Liability Act (“FELA”) 45 U.S.C. §51 et seq. by an injured rail worker solely because a similar state common law claim would be preempted. This interaction of FRSA and FELA would be a question of first impression before this Court.
2. Whether the court below improperly relied upon a concern for uniformity instead of safety contrary to the safety objective of FRSA and the mandate expressed at 49 U.S.C. §103(c) which states that the greatest priority of Congress is the “highest degree of safety in railroad transportation.”
3. Whether this Court should resolve the conflict currently present in the legal holdings of the Fifth and Sixth Circuit Courts of Appeal compared to the legal holdings of the Seventh and Ninth Circuit Courts of Appeal as to whether 49 C.F.R. §213.103 covers the subject of walkways adjacent to railroad tracks to preclude FELA causes of action based upon unsafe walking conditions.

1. Does the Fourth Amendment categorically permit officers to detain occupants of a residence for several hours during the execution of a search warrant - without regard to the facts that the search is merely for financial records and that the individuals represent no threat but instead are dramatically outnumbered by the officers - as the Fourth Circuit held in conflict with the Ninth and Tenth Circuits?
2. When a claim against the United States under the Federal Tort Claims Act (FTCA) is dismissed, does the FTCA’s judgment bar, 28 U.S.C. § 2676 require dismissal of independent claims against individual federal officials in the same complaint, as the Fourth Circuit held in conflict with the Ninth Circuit?

First Amendment: Commercial Speech

1. As amended in 2008, the California Outdoor Advertising Act prohibits offsite commercial advertising, but exempts onsite commercial advertising, as well as “noncommercial, protected speech contained within any advertising display.” Petitioner Maldonado owns a billboard that was erected with a valid building permit in 1956, and the billboard is located on private property in a regulated zone. Is the legal distinction between commercial and noncommercial speech so vague, overbroad, and arbitrary that it violates Due Process and abridges the Freedom of Speech and Press?

2. A precedent of this Court held that a zoning law which banned newsracks displaying commercial publications, but exempted newsracks displaying noncommercial publications, was overbroad as a commercial speech regulation under prong four of the Central Hudson test, and could not otherwise qualify as a “time, place, and manner” regulation (subject to a different intermediate scrutiny test) because the commercial-noncommercial distinction was content-based. Is that precedent binding as to billboards? What legal standards should be used to evaluate injunctions and equal protection claims involving a commercial-noncommercial distinction?

3. Under prong three of the Central Hudson balancing test, the government generally must submit substantial evidence to prove that its censorship of truthful, non-misleading commercial speech “materially advances” a substantial government interest. In the context of billboards, does an offsite commercial speech restriction materially advance aesthetic and traffic safety interests as a matter of law, or must the government submit substantial evidence to prove the law is effective, both in the aggregate and as-applied to the particular billboard?

In Green Tree Financial Corp. v. Bazzle, this Court granted certiorari to decide a question that had divided the lower courts: whether the Federal Arbitration Act (FAA) permits the imposition of class arbitration when the parties' agreement is silent regarding class arbitration. The Court was unable to reach that question, however, because a plurality concluded that th arbitrator first needed to address whether the agreement there was in fact "silent." That threshold obstacle is not present in this case, and the question presented here—which continues to divide the lower courts—is the same on presented in Bazzle: Whether imposing class arbitration on parties whose arbitration clauses are silent on that issue is consistent with the FAA.
