FOR-PROFIT PRESIDENT

The First 100 Days of Donald Trump’s Presidency: Enriching His Private Business, Carrying Out a Corporate Takeover and Putting Profits Before People

May 3, 2017

By Rick Claypool, Research Director for Public Citizen’s President’s Office
About Public Citizen

Public Citizen is a national non-profit organization with more than 400,000 members and supporters. We represent consumer interests through lobbying, litigation, administrative advocacy, research, and public education on a broad range of issues including consumer rights in the marketplace, product safety, financial regulation, worker safety, safe and affordable health care, campaign finance reform and government ethics, fair trade, climate change, and corporate and government accountability.
INTRODUCTION

From day one, President Trump has used his position to expand and enrich his private businesses, lead an unprecedented corporate takeover by installing CEOs and corporate cronies at the highest levels of government and advance policies that prioritize expanding Big Business profits at the expense of the public interest.

Much of what happened over the course of Trump’s first 100 days in office was presaged by his transition, which was characterized by a rapid influx of corporate-connected staff who were made responsible for transferring power to the incoming administration.1

The transition staff members were soon upstaged by Trump’s cabinet nominees, a selection of CEOs and corporate-backed Republican officials who constitute an unprecedented corporate cabinet.2

And while plans for dramatic cuts to federal programs3 and high-level meetings with corporate executives regarding business matters before the government4 were going on before Trump took the oath of office, the true depth of the administration’s unswerving commitment to an especially savage version of corporate capitalism is now, as we approach the first 100 days under the Trump administration, utterly clear.

DAY 100
Saturday, April 29, 2017

Enriching Private Business ✓

During a “very friendly” phone call with Rodrigo Duterte, President of the Philippines, Trump invites the authoritarian leader to visit the White House.⁵

Duterte has reportedly ordered extrajudicial killings of thousands of his people.

A $150 million Trump Tower is slated to open soon in Manila, the capital of the Philippines, where Trump and his daughter Ivanka also have trademark applications pending.⁶

DAY 99
Friday, April 28, 2017

Profits Before People ✓

Trump signs an executive order to begin rolling back offshore drilling restrictions put in place after the BP oil spill disaster.⁷

Profits Before People ✓

The EPA’s main climate change web site goes down, pending updates to reflect "the agency’s new direction" under the Trump administration.⁸

DAY 98
Thursday, April 27, 2017

Profits Before People ✓

White House Office of Management and Budget Director Mick Mulvaney floats wildly inaccurate conspiracy theory that government officials deliberately undercount regulatory costs in order to justify regulation.9

The truth is that regulators rely on information supplied by regulated industries in order to calculate costs, and that benefits – such as lives saved and pollution prevented – are notoriously difficult to quantify.10

The Washington Post fact-checked Mulvaney’s claims, and awarded them “three Pinocchios.”11

Corporate Takeover ✓

To prevent Trump from cancelling the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA), the U.S. Chamber of Commerce urges its corporate CEO members to lobby the White House.12

Enriching Private Business ✓

Despite Trump’s press conference in January before taking office, in which he tried to demonstrate his separation from his businesses while still retaining ownership, that process, ProPublica finds, is still incomplete.13

DAY 97
Wednesday, April 26, 2017

Enriching Private Business ✔

Profits Before People ✔

The Trump administration releases the broad outlines of a tax plan that reduces taxes on corporations and “pass-through” companies to 15 percent, repeals the estate tax, eliminates investment taxes that help fund the Affordable Care Act, and lowers the top income tax rate to 35 percent (from 39.6 percent). The result of the plan would be a massive transference of wealth from public coffers to corporations and the wealthiest Americans, including Trump.

The amount the tax plan would benefit Trump is unknown, as the president has yet to disclose his tax forms. Responding to a question from a reporter, Treasury Secretary Steven Mnuchin said Trump has “no intention” of releasing his tax returns.

Profits Before People ✔

A new version of the Trump-backed Republican bill to repeal and replace the Affordable Care Act is introduced. In an effort to appeal to the earlier version’s right-wing opponents, the new version weakens protections for people with pre-existing conditions.

Profits Before People ✔

Trump signs an executive order to review national monuments, potentially a step toward gutting protections that prevent oil and gas drilling on some public lands.

Profits Before People ✔

FCC chairman Ajit Pai introduces his plan to replace net neutrality rules a plan that relies on broadband corporations promising to regulate themselves.

DAY 96
Tuesday, April 25, 2017

Corporate Takeover ✓

Doug Seaton, a professional union buster, is said to be on Trump’s “short list” of nominees to join the National Labor Relations Board, a federal agency whose purpose includes protecting the rights of workers to join together to form a union.20

Profits Before People ✓

Instead of punishing corporations that ship jobs overseas, a Public Citizen report finds that these corporations are being awarded government contracts.21

DAY 95
Monday, April 24, 2017

Enriching Private Business ✔

Trump’s Mar-a-Lago resort in Palm Springs, Fla., is promoted in a blog post on websites for the State Department, the U.S. embassy in the United Kingdom and the U.S. embassy in Albania. Following criticism from journalists and ethics experts, the blog post is taken down.22

Profits Before People ✔

MetLife, which contributed $100,000 to Trump’s inauguration,23 asks an appeals court to delay a ruling over its status as a “too big to fail” institution, citing the Trump administration’s intention to review the policy.24

DAY 94
Sunday, April 23, 2017

Profits Before People ✓

A White House official tells Reuters to expect executive orders to expand offshore oil and gas drilling and fossil fuel development on public lands in the week ahead.²⁵

Corporate Takeover ✓

The New York Times details Trump’s inner circle of unofficial confidants, including billionaire corporate executives such as Rupert Murdoch (News Corporation), Steven Schwarzman (Blackrock), Steven Roth (Vornado Realty), Philip Ruffin (casino owner), Carl Icahn (Icahn Enterprises, Federal-Mogul) and Thomas Barrack, Jr. (Colony Capital).26

DAY 92
Friday, April 21, 2017

Profits Before People ✓

Trump signs an executive order to weaken Obama-era restrictions on corporate “inversions,” a scheme multinational corporations use to avoid paying U.S. taxes27 and two memoranda directed and weakening parts of the Dodd-Frank Wall Street reform law, including the body charged with designating financial institutions “too big to fail.”28

Corporate Takeover ✓

ProPublica reports Temporary beachhead team members becoming permanent members of the administration, including at least five who are former lobbyists who are now working from within the agencies they once lobbied.29

29 https://www.propublica.org/article/trump-temporary-officials-some-now-permanent-employees
An inventory of Trump properties by USA Today finds that Trump’s corporations own at least 422 condo units, 12 mansions and “dozens” more smaller pieces of real estate, with the total value estimated to be at least $250 million. USA Today makes the point that any person or corporation could buy one of these properties, including potentially at an above-market price, to ingratiate themselves with the president. Since the election, Trump companies have sold $23 million in properties; about half of the sales went to limited liability companies.

Corporate Takeover

Less than one week after former ExxonMobil CEO and current Secretary of State Rex Tillerson meets with Russian President Vladimir Putin, the Wall Street Journal reveals that ExxonMobil is lobbying for a waiver from U.S. sanctions on Russia so that it can drill for oil with Russia’s state-run oil company. (Trump said no.)

Profits Before People

FCC chairman Ajit Pai moves to eliminate rules that prevented telecommunications corporations from raising prices on other businesses and limited how many broadcast channels could be owned by a single corporation.

Corporate Takeover

An in-depth analysis by the International Business Times reveals how the Trump administration appears to be crafting policies that are particularly beneficial for Blackstone, a financial firm whose CEO Stephen Schwarzman routinely officers policy advice to Trump and, likewise, how Blackstone appears to be pursuing investments that reflect Trump policy priorities.
DAY 89
Tuesday, April 18, 2017

Corporate Takeover ✓

The Federal Election Commission releases a 500-page report on contributions to Trump’s inauguration. Corporations contributed a significant portion to the $106.7 million haul, including Reynolds American, Boeing, AT&T, General Motors, Murray Energy Corporation, Comcast, Anthem and Northrop Grumman. Among the most generous donors – those who gave at least $1 million – were billionaires Sheldon Adelson, Robert Mercer, Charles Schwab and Paul Singer.36

Profits Before People ✓

To promote American manufacturing, Trump visits the Madison, Wis., headquarters of Snap-On, a tool corporation that reportedly manufactures some of its products in China, is embroiled in lawsuits and is accused of engaging in predatory lending practices with its franchisees.37

Corporate Takeover ✔

Reporting by ProPublica and the New York Times finds that a slew of former lobbyists are now working within the Trump administration to deregulate the industries they previously represented from the outside, in some cases in apparent violation of the Trump administration's ethics policy.42

DAY 85
Friday, April 14, 2017

Corporate Takeover ✓

The White House announces it will not make visitor logs public, a reversal of the Obama administration’s policy, which enabled journalists, advocates and the public to track corporate lobbyists and others who were influencing policy in the executive branch.43

Profits Before People ✓

The Trump administration awards a $110 million contract to build a new immigrant detention center to GEO Group, a private prison company that contributed $225,000 to a pro-Trump super PAC and $250,000 toward Trump’s inauguration.44

Corporate Takeover ✓

Trump nominates two Republican former members of Congress to oversee the Export-Import Bank, an agency Trump called “unnecessary” on the campaign trail.45 While some corporate-backed groups such as the Koch brothers’ Americans for Prosperity and the Club for Growth support eliminating the agency, large manufacturers such as General Electric and Boeing that sell products abroad support the agency, as does the U.S. Chamber of Commerce.46

Corporate Takeover ✓

Nancy Beck, a policy director for the American Chemistry Council (a chemical industry lobbying group whose members include ExxonMobil, Monsanto, Bayer, Dow Chemical, and DuPont), is Trump’s pick to head the EPA office charged with regulating the chemical industry.47

While the official White House readout of Trump’s activities suggest back-to-back high level policy meetings, the president in fact spent much of the day at Trump International Golf Course, golfing with the CEO of Newsmax, a conservative news outlet.

Later, Trump dines at Mar-a-Lago with Marvel CEO Ike Perlmutter, who spent more than $1 million supporting Trump’s presidential campaign.

Trump unveils his first budget proposal, which increases military spending by $54 billion and offsets the spending with severe cuts to public protections and social programs.\(^\text{128}\)

The cuts include a 31 percent reduction in funding to the EPA,\(^\text{129}\) a 28 percent reduction in funding to the State Department,\(^\text{130}\) and a 21 percent reduction in funding to the Departments of Labor and Agriculture.\(^\text{131}\)

Regarding the cuts, the Obama administration’s EPA enforcement efforts said:

[More cuts] won’t just drastically reduce EPA enforcement, it will bring it to a halt […] Not only will the staff be a shadow of its former self, the inspectors, lawyers and criminal agents who would be left would be unable to do their jobs, because these cuts would zero out the already small amount of funds used to do inspections, monitor pollution and file cases.\(^\text{132}\)

Corporate Takeover

Betsy DeVos, Trump’s nominee to lead the Department of Education, is sworn in following a historic 50-50 Senate confirmation vote, a tie that was broken by Vice President Mike Pence adding his vote. DeVos is the daughter of a Michigan manufacturing billionaire and the wife of Amway heir and billionaire Richard DeVos. DeVos is an advocate for privatizing public education, a Wall Street-backed scheme that depends on profiting by undermining teacher compensation.

First Lady Melania Trump intends to make multimillion-dollar “licensing, branding, and endorsement” deals in “apparel, accessories, shoes, jewelry, cosmetics, hair care, skin care, and fragrance,” according to a lawsuit she files against British tabloid the Daily Mail. The lawsuit argues that, because the Daily Mail inaccurately alleged Melania Trump had worked as an escort, she will have a reduced ability to profit off her time in the White House. Melania’s representatives later issued a statement claiming she has “no intent” of profiting from her role as first lady.

After the meeting, Trump signs an executive order aimed at unraveling the Dodd-Frank Wall Street reform law.

In an interview with The Wall Street Journal about the deregulating Wall Street, White House National Economic Council Director and former Goldman Sachs executive Gary Cohn said, “we’re not going to burden the banks with literally hundreds of billions of dollars of regulatory costs every year.” Cohn insisted his involvement with the deregulation push “has nothing to do with Goldman Sachs.”

In a speech, the U.S. Federal Trade Commission’s newly appointed acting chair, “regulation critic” Maureen Ohlhausen, announces a scaling back of the agency’s aggressiveness in investigating corporate crime and wrongdoing.283

Ohlhausen says requests for information from companies “impose large compliance costs on legitimate companies” and notes disagreement with some of her predecessor’s actions under the Obama administration, such as the $20 million settlement reached with Uber over its allegedly misleading claims about potential driver earnings, which, she criticized as too costly for the corporation.284

Tillerson is a former chairman of American Petroleum Institute (API), the fossil fuel industry trade group, which lobbies on behalf of the industry. ExxonMobil and API are among the groups behind misinformation campaigns designed to confuse the public about the reality of human-caused climate change.288

Tillerson also is a member of the Business Roundtable, an executive-led corporate lobbying group. In the 1990s, Tillerson directed Exxon’s Russian subsidiary, Exxon Neftegas, which was incorporated in the Bahamas, an offshore tax haven.289

Trump meets with pharmaceutical industry CEOs. He told the CEOs he would eliminate 75 to 80 percent of Food and Drug Administration regulations,\(^\text{292}\) a promise that, if fulfilled, would make the agency too weak to fulfill its mission of protecting patients and consumers and ultimately result the deaths and injuries to innumerable Americans.\(^\text{293}\)

Trump signs a disastrous and likely unconstitutional executive order that would force federal agencies to eliminate two federal regulations for every one they wish to implement.297

The executive order relies on misleading, industry-preferred claims that dramatically overestimate regulations’ future costs and gives the director of the Office of Management and Budget authority to exempt specific rules, including, potentially, those that benefit specific businesses, including the Trump Organization.298

DAY 9
Saturday, January 28, 2017

Corporate Takeover ✔

Trump signs an executive order on lobbying that loosens Obama administration restrictions on lobbyists.305

According to the order, lobbyists will be permitted to become employees of federal agencies they have lobbied (though they will not be permitted to work on specific issues on which they lobbied) and the “cooling off” period restricting communications between appointees who leave and their agency will be reduced from two to one year.

The executive order also fails to place a five-year prohibition on members of Congress becoming lobbyists, which Trump pledged to do during the presidential campaign.

While administration officials are forbidden from becoming lobbyists, the executive order would still allow them to cash in on their service by becoming strategic advisors, consultants or taking similar roles that do not involve direct lobbying.

At the meeting, Trump said he would slash regulations “75 percent,” a promise there is no way to keep without eliminating bedrock public protections that restrain Wall Street recklessness, prevent drinking water from being contaminated, ensure the safety of our food and medicines, protect the environment, and so on, and which echoes the lie that regulatory protections impose greater costs than benefits on the U.S. economy.324

At the Davos World Economic Forum, corporate executives from around the globe had gathered to play make-believe about the refugee crisis\(^329\) and expressed optimistic views about the impending Trump administration.\(^330\)

Among them was Jamie Dimon, CEO of JPMorgan Chase, the largest bank in the U.S. with more than $2.4 trillion in assets. JPMorgan contributed to the Trump Inauguration and has spent millions lobbying to weaken the 2010 Dodd-Frank Wall Street reform act, which Trump’s transition website pledged to “dismantle.”\(^331\)

Dimon said:

Donald Trump has put some professional people around himself. Experienced. Successful. I know a lot of people seem to think that success and experience are reasons you shouldn't serve in public office. But they are knowledgeable and smart and they've been around the world. And hopefully when we go from one-liners — forget the one-liners and tweets — to serious policy, maybe we'll do the things that help America grow better and help the average American.\(^332\)

Saturday, January 21, 2017

President Trump delivers a speech at CIA headquarters.

Profits Before People ✓
Corporate Takeover ✓

During the speech, Trump speculates that the United States should have “taken the oil” from Iraq after the 2003-2011 Iraq war:

“[I]f we kept the oil, you probably wouldn’t have ISIS because that’s where they made their money in the first place, so we should have kept the oil. But, OK, maybe we’ll have another chance.”

The idea that the US should have “taken” Iraq’s oil, which many critics note would contravene international law, was a campaign theme for Trump. Erik Prince, former CEO of Blackwater, a now-defunct corporate mercenary outfit, has defended the idea. (Prince is the brother of Betsy DeVos, Trump’s Education Secretary nominee, and both are children of a Michigan billionaire.)
